We see naturally loackward about being forward in such matters, and though the reportoral institutions since ferreted out the goings on of the Hoc Loca Courbridity association, still nor affection (natural not nequired) for secret societies kept as silent. As long since ferreted out the goings on of the Hoc Loce Courleidity association, still our affection (natural not acquired) for secret societies kept in silent. As your correspondent stated, the meetings are at odd intervals, and a glance at the name will convince that (in this vicinity) they are of inscessity so. We are afraid (though not frightened) that we have noted clate meeting, and in support of outlier freedom', which every repshould "have at heart" we make it public. The aforesaid meeting was carried in without many of the accessories of official importance—only a ming, two or three eggs, a kindling silek, and a botte of prepared chier. Perhaps our diligence is at fault for exposing thepoverty of this order in lodge-room properties, but we make it all right by dividight that the scene changes every session.

THE GOLDEN WEDDING

If you want to pass the moments

In a cheerful, pleasant way, ome with me to Adna Burrell's,

On this all-important day.

The years have rolled above him

Till they count two-score and i Since he was represented As the happiest of men.

It was Crocker's Mary Miller,
Then a malden young and fair,
Who consented to make one of
A matrimonial pair.
The minister who lied them
Said the job was nearly done,
And aema them off contented,
With their twa hearts linked in one.

Since then they have lived and conrished

Like a bealthy green bay-tree; And if you don't believe the same,

Then look around and sac.
Their lifa-long friands and neighbors
In this good old town today,

Can tell you how they're at riven All the Scripture to ubey.

They provided for their honsehold,

And according to command, They shill their best to populate

And replenish all the land. Here's Benjamin, and Esrnesi, And John, all laboring bard;

Where they pickle pork and tard.

There's no doubt you trained them, Adna, In the good old-fashloned way; For school books and for peppermints,

You had the bills to pay;
And when they tore their trovsers
In clambering o'er the fence,
There's oo doubt that Mary gave them

But lat these bitter memories
With the hy-gone years glide by;
There's no need of caling brown bread
When you've got enough of ple.
Forget the certain bretures.
Let the wash-day troubles after,
and we'll keep hove lorgether.

While floating down the title

Oh, 6fty years of married life Has brought us here tonight; We have all seen our dark days, And yet we've seen our bright.

You'll all agree with me, Will be remembered by us all, Who speny it socially.

of incidents connected with the exursion of the Massachusotts l'ress to Virginia and the Capital City closed with the trip to Arlington on Snaday, and we take up the thread of narrative with Monday's doings, which commenced at an early hour with a detour among the various oldjects of interest in the city, and calls on the Weymouth hoys now domiiled at the Capital. In this tour we were much indebted to Mr. Samuel Haxter, formerly of Quiney, who has been an attache of the Second Auditor's Department for several years, and who placed himself at the service of a number of the party for the day. Winder's Huilding was the lirst object of attention, and here we found the offices of the Ordinauce department with the Ordnance museum in which are displayed a large number of trophies of the rehellion, lacksting eanfederate flags torn with shel and shell, Jefferson Davis' rifle, a section of a tree which had been cut down by builets at the Fredericksburg fight, and all the paraphernalia of grim visaged war. The Treasury building came uext lu order of visit, and here we found Capt. Gaming at his post, who gave "Victory," "Fame" aml "Washingus a hearty welcome and proceeded to tool at the desk of his brother-indepot at Chicago. The stopping of his triedly wherein and proceedarty

The cash room of the Preasury is a motable attraction, the valls being of most beautiful marbles, Italian and American, while the offices are elegantly furnished throughout. But we must hasten to the new

State, War and Navy Department, which, when completed, will be one of the fluest buildings in the country. Passing into one of the offices w found our lively Washington corres pondent "CARL," who is sugaged in compilation of the large mass of records of the Department, but who nevertheless devoted an interval to shewing ap" the features of the building. We were pleased to note that our correspondent's ability as a public functionary" is appreciated, and we should not be surprised to learn, ere many years have passed, of his elevation to a high rank of otheral life. "Carl" is a worker in every respeet, and in the Interim of official duty has devoted his hours of leisure, (in addition to large correspondence,) to the production of a work which is destined to receive a wide notoriety and will shortly be published by a well known New York house, who will issue 5000 copies of the first all the antiquities discovered of late milition. "Carl" is one of "themliterary fellows" who is bound to shine as a bright particular star in the world

This interview ended, our courtrouguide, Mr. Baxter, toted the party lown to the Smithsonlan Institution -a point where days and weeks might ce profitaldy spent, in studying its contents, and which has the entire world for its sphere of operations. Perhaps some of our readers may have orgotten the details of the origin of immense establishment, and t refresh their memories we note the rominent objects.

WASHINGTON, May 10, '80. observe from the tone of the outside press, that by reason of the activity of the Blaine canvass during the past week, no iess than the public announcement of several prominent tion to disobey the lustructious of the etate convention, that the Grant mnnagers are correspondingly depressed, and have in contemplation an ulum donment of the ex-President to his fate. If this is so, it is the newslest eured three hundred and forty-seven seventy delegates, three wecks before the convention; if to have secured twelve delegates from Maryland, state always conceded to Blaine, in all Grant estimates, and loudly pro claimed as absolutely safe by the Biaine bureau from the vory incepa clear majority of the lillnols primaries with their resultant of fortytwo delegates to Chicago, is n cunso for depression of apprits, then I presume the friends of Grant are downright disheartened. But the truth is the utmost entinsiasm exists among the supporter of the leading candi no takers, that he will go to Chicago with more than the four hundred votes that have always heen cinimed ways, that he goes there at ali.

If on the other hand they are iu a minority, there is ground for the belief that his name will not be mentioned in convention, in which event their position will be a decidedly embarrassing one. The principle inwhether Judge Robertson, whose loyalty to party is unquestioned, should or should not be permitted to exercise his iadividual preference between two candidates, either of whom are wholly unobjectionable to the masses of the party, but if a delegate who accepts a trust conditional upuu a consideration, has the right to betray his trust by reasou of the consideration being distasteful to him, why should not m elector, whose position of trust is hased upou similar considerations, be justified in similar action? the Biaine men who are threatening all sorts of dire calamitles in the vent of Grant's nomination. There s searcely a doubt but that Mr. Blains and his friends will cordially ndorse and support the nomines of he Chicago convention, and it is equally certain that if in a square, stand-up fight between Grant and Blaine the latter should carry off the honors, he would be aided and pushed by the whole machinery of the stailleved however, that upon no other candidate than Mr. Blaine, with

A Variety Wedding
Took place on Pond Plain Wednesday evening of isst week, which may be called variety in all things. It was the fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bates, and the presents were numerous, useful and ernamental, consisting of table, mifrors, chairs, enrepet, crockery and glassware, hangings, linen, tidies, lamps, clock, and other articles, together with quite a purse of money, the giftn of relatives, friends and neighbors, who crowded the house. The evening was spent in singing by Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Poul, Misses Oreutt and Slattery, and also's number of emmie soings from our friend James Ifulbrook, who kept the guessis in a roar of laughter all the evening. Those who know him can easily imagine the pleasure he furnished. There was also instrumental music by our veterau vicilin player, Alden White, and, I'. Loud, with the harp, who are also ways readly to entertain with popuiar airs, while Misses Alice Shaw, Sarah

S. L. Rice, who rans two hotels, the Wayshie House and the Wayshie William of the summer campaign. "Steve" is a Weymouth boy himself, and his hotels are justly popular will people from our told town, for multiludes of others from all parts make the eafe or house a stopping place while here. We do not wonder that his houses are favortes with the public, as he undoubtedly knows how to run a hotel. Steve posides over the cufe and Mrs. Rice has the management of the house, and the man who goes away from either dissatisfied is yet to be found. Everything is conducted in a quiet and orderly manner at both house, and the most fastilious will find multing objectionable at either pines.

Studies in High Schools.

I suppose the goal we should aim to each in a discussion of the question of s general principle—that which shall govern the selection of studies of a ourse in general-and not the making out of a course to be used in all ases. For, there are High Schools and there are High Schools. There must be differences. The High School of Boston must be one thing. and the High School of Canton or both beys and girls, and her English time take pride in the High school of the country town for what it is in its place and for what it is going to be. If it cannot be what those of the cities are, we will not complain, but will give oar endeavors to making it as ef-constantly going on. There is a pro- facts. For it may he assumed, that in a High School, these subjects can only be considered descriptively and in outline. They even considered only descriptively, but information and not discipline. Again, it is a matter of common observation that intellectual life has its stages, that particular work has omitted at its proper time and delewhat the men and means of the small it is made difficult if not impossible.

M1, t. Freeman Hall, of Quincy, gave a paper on thow Reading and Spelling should be taught in Primary Schools. He said that Reading should begin by object lessons. Clear mental pictures stamped on the mind from the presen-tation of objects is the foundation of all reading. Primary teachers should teach as a mother, by trinary teachers statute teach as a business y ubjects first, but as economically as a business man, helping the child to learn the word with the ubject. Wurds have a definite outline and it is well to teach to pronounce them. It is an unnatural struggle to learn a word by parts. Care should be taken to make every word retain to the child's mind. Only those words its unity in the child's mind. Only those words which are obest familiar should be first taught. Some words can be taught by word method Some words can be taught of which without reference to sound, t, i.e., a, an, is, on, at, in, hit, hite, how, who, where. Hunics should be used very carefully. By sluwly pronouncing words after the teacher, the scholars when the I am rejoicing over the prospective delights of long days on deck in my teacher writes new words on the board, scholars will begin to pronuunce as she writes. Reading then is to be laught by these three methods,unbjective, word, and phonic method, all com-bined harmoniously The sentence method,— of combining the nord which is to be taught, in various ways, as, this is a cat, I see the cat, ile you see the cat, &c., is the main line of work in primary leaching. Wurds can be taught which are phonelically arranged, as cat, bat, rat, hat, &c. each day teaching a new cunsonant. All word for the first eight or ten weeks should be taugh rout the blackboard, written, not prin When the scholars take the reading books the script and the text. In instances given the di ence between script and print was not notice

Rev. 1. E. St. John, late on wordered with preach in the First church next Sunday.

Sunday night of last week, about 9 c-2 o'clock, parties from Weymnath and others undertook to make considerable noise upon the street. Being confronted by officer Whiton, and not desisting, he collared the ringleader, but not getting a firm hold, he broke away and ran into the clutches of officer tiardner. A struggle ensued, when being forced against the fence he showed fight by striking the officer a blow on the lip. A desper ate struggle was made by the culprit to get away but a few bluws from officer Gardner's billy soor brought him to an understanding of the majest of the law. Twisters were applied, and whet taken to the lockup he gave his name as Jerc niah Donovan of East Weymonth. A larg crowd followed them on the way, and just a they were cutering, a large stone was thrown b some one in the crowd, which just passed cle of officer Whiton's head. He was arraigned b fore the District Court at Abington, on Monda before Judge Keith, for disturbing the pear and for an assault upon an officer, and in defau of $2S to pay his fine, went to the Honse Correction at Plymouth, for three months. The officers appointed by the Sup't of Census for taking the Tenth Census of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Malaria,
Diphtheris. Pneumonia, Sore Throst
Inflamination of the Lungs, &c. work assigned them on the first day of Hous of the town.

Baker's Premium, About haif-past 3 last Tuesday morning, fire was discovered in the table of Pairlck Whalen, on the Turpike read, which communicated with the dwelling, and aimost immediately the buildings were a mass of fame, and it was with great difficulty that Mr. W. and his family escaped. The neighbor railited to the spot and succeeded in saving a small part of the furniture. The barn was totally destrayed, with its contents of two horses, two cows and helier, a calf, 25 pigs, 150 hens, besides six tons of hay. Six pige were saved. Owing to the place being remote from the village, the Fire Department received no alarm, and were not present. The loss is estimated at $6000, but we have not learned the amount of insurance.
